Publishing Agreement

It is the policy of UC Santa Barbara to deposit all electronic theses and dissertations (ETDs) at the UC Santa Barbara Library. ETDs will be archived in the Library’s institutional repository (IR), known as the Alexandria Digital Research Library (ADRL). These archived ETDs will be accessible to users with the UCSB campus IP address. Titles, abstracts, and other metadata for ETDs can be viewed by the public in ADRL and are accessible via internet search engines.

Dissemination Options

You have two choices when electronically submitting your thesis or dissertation:

1. Restrict access to users with the UCSB IP address. Choose “Campus Use Only” in the IR Publishing Options section when submitting your ETD.

2. Open Access allows access in ADRL and also in eScholarship, the institutional repository for the University of California. Your ETD will be accessible to the general public via the ETD’s permalink, by using an internet search engine, or by searching ADRL or eScholarship. Choose “Open Access” in the IR Publishing Options section when submitting your ETD. There is no fee for the IR Open Access option.

Delayed Release (Embargo)

In either case above, whether you choose “Campus Use Only” or “Open Access,” you may choose to embargo your ETD for six months, one year, two years, or longer. An embargo of more than two years requires the approval of your committee chair and the graduate dean. To request an embargo of longer than two years, please follow the instructions on this website:
